The authors would like to thank the following individuals and organisations for their invaluable encouragement and assistance with this project: Fouad Shehadeh facilitated the accurate translation of legal terms from Arabic into English. Raja Shehadeh provided general advice on the project, as well as legally-orientated editorial comments. Al-Haq, the West Bank Affiliate of the International Commission of Jurists, generously placed the resources of their organisation at our disposal, and Khaled Batrawi deserves special thanks. We are also grateful to Fiona McKay, to the Alternative Information Centre in Jerusalem and to Munther Jaber of the Ramallah Computer Company for his tireless work on the layout of the text.

We are particularly indebted to NOVIB, the Netherlands Organisation for International Development Cooperation, whose continuing support of the JMCC’s work made this project possible.
FOREWORD

The collection of military orders and regulations are the foundation, the cornerstone, of Israel's 26-year occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip. It is an occupation preoccupied with 'legality', and in this sense it is arguably unique. These military orders and regulations sanction, or make 'legal', virtually every illegal act that occurs in the occupied Palestinian territories: the occupation itself, civil and human rights violations, and violations against Palestinians' political, economic, social and cultural rights.

More than 1,300 military orders have been issued in the West Bank and over 1,000 similar orders in the Gaza Strip. Their primary aim has been to force out, through various means, the majority of Palestinians and subjugate the remainder of the population. Acquisition and confiscation of the land and debilitating economic restrictions have all been made possible through these orders and regulations. They have given a 'legal' facade to the manipulation of natural resources for the interest and benefit of the belligerent occupier rather than for the indigenous population and have imposed obstacles intended to stifle any attempt at economic, social or cultural development in the occupied Palestinian territories. They are geared towards promoting and strengthening Israel's own interests. A striking example of this is in the economic sphere where Israel has manipulated and restricted the Palestinian economy to its own advantage. Equally important is the method by which Israel has used the military orders to acquire land, under the pretext that such land is needed for 'security purposes'. Appropriated land has been turned over for settlement building to accommodate the influx of Jewish settlers into the occupied Palestinian territories.

International law enables the belligerent occupying power to issue certain regulations but only under two conditions: if the security of the occupying forces necessitates new legislation or if new regulations are required in the interests of the civilian population. The majority of military orders and regulations do not comply with these conditions. Israel's occupation has continued in contravention of United Nations Security Council Resolution 242 (1967), which recognised that the West Bank and Gaza Strip were indeed 'occupied' and demanded, among other things, that Israel withdraw its forces. In line with this resolution, Israel was called on to adhere to international law concerning the protection of civilians in times of war and belligerent occupation, including the Fourth Geneva Convention. Instead, Israel has used the military orders and regulations to change facts on the ground; to de facto annex the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The current and increasing discussion about Israel's occupation of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip was primarily the reason that this collection of military orders is being published in English. We hope that this summary translation will enable those concerned to have access to this complex collection which governs every aspect of Palestinian life in the occupied Palestinian territories. It is also our belief that for the current peace efforts to be successful, the negotiations must focus on revoking the Israeli military orders and enable Palestinians to legislate their own laws and regulations.

INTRODUCTION

On 7 June 1967, Israeli forces announced, in Military Proclamation 1, that they had occupied and taken control over the West Bank and the Gaza Strip 'in the interests of security and public order'. In the 25 years of occupation which have followed every change of policy or priority on the part of the Israeli authorities has been accompanied by a military order. It has been a legalistic occupation. Therefore, the study of military orders provides an excellent way of monitoring the developing nature of the occupation and its effects on the occupied Palestinian population.

This directory is intended to fill a long-standing need for a comprehensive survey of the military orders in English. It documents only those military orders which have been issued in the West Bank (excluding East Jerusalem which was annexed by Israel in 1967 and is now subject to Israeli law). However, military orders issued for the Gaza Strip are in general identical to their West Bank counterparts in everything except numbering. It is not within the scope of this directory to assess either the legality of these orders, or their wider legal implications; this is a task for qualified lawyers. Nor does the directory provide verbatim translations of the Hebrew and Arabic texts of the orders. Instead, it supplies a short summary of each order, taken from the Arabic text, which is intended to simplify the task of the researcher or lawyer in identifying those military orders which are relevant to his/her particular area of study.

Prior to 1980, all the military orders and regulations which had been passed since 1967 were not available in a systematic and comprehensive form to the occupied population whose lives they ruled, or to lawyers and researchers trying to operate within the complex, and often impenetrable, system. Since 1980, official volumes containing the Hebrew and Arabic text of orders have been retroactively issued. However, these volumes do not constitute an Official Gazette, they are simply termed as a ‘Collection of Orders, Pamphlets, and Appointments’. This directory has been compiled from this collection.

There are five categories of legislation documented within this directory:

- MILITARY PROCLAMATIONS Only three military proclamations have been issued, all of them within the first two days of the occupation. Signed by the Israeli Chief of Staff, they granted the Area Military Commander sweeping powers of control over the occupied Palestinian territories and their inhabitants. Military Proclamation 3 is undated and very detailed indeed; it seems probable that it was written in anticipation of the occupation as part of an Israeli contingency plan.

NUMBERED MILITARY ORDERS Signed by the Area Military Commander, these orders make up the vast majority of the legislation issued during the course of the occupation. Since 1967, 1,377 military orders regulating life in the West Bank have been published by the Israeli authorities. However, an unquantifiable number of military orders, dating from July 1992 to the end of the year, have yet to be issued by the Israeli authorities, with the exception of Military Order 1369, dated 16 December 1992, which covers the mass expulsion of Palestinians to southern Lebanon.

UNNUMBERED (UNN) MILITARY ORDERS Signed by a commander of the Israeli army or, since its inception in 1981 (Military Order 947), by the head of the Civil Administration, these orders amend Jordanian and British Mandate laws, as well as existing military orders, in precisely the same way as numbered orders do.

REGULATIONS These regulations are issued by the various heads of departments in the Civil Administration to whom power has been delegated first by the Area Military Commander, and then by the head of the Civil Administration.

NOTIFICATIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS These may be issued by lower ranking officers in the various departments of the Civil Administration. They amend minor points of detail in existing military orders and regulations.

The reader will rapidly discover on using this directory that, while the numbered military orders are generally issued and published chronologically in the official Israeli volumes, the unnumbered ones are far from chronological, and are often published long after they have been issued. There are nonetheless many cases of numbering inconsistencies among the numbered orders, such as when two separate orders are given the same number (eg. Military Orders 161), or when sequential numbers are simply passed over (eg. Military Order 349), or when orders are cancelled before they are published (eg. Military Order 10). Military Orders 1157 to 1229 are particularly confusing since the same order is given a different number depending on the whether it was issued individually or in a bound volume by the Israeli authorities. In these cases we have alerted the reader to both numbers.

The numbering becomes even more erratic with respects to the amendments to existing military orders. Often amendment numbers are not in sequence, or the same number is repeatedly issued, or numbers are simply skipped over (a particularly extreme example of this phenomenon is presented by Military Order 263). In other cases, military orders are amended after they have already been cancelled (eg. Military Order 783), or amendment numbers are given to orders which are in themselves amendments to the root military order (eg. Military Order 56); in these instances we have added the tertiary amendment number to both the original order and its secondary amendment.
Unless otherwise specified in the text (see Military Order 823) the military orders are dated in accordance with the date of issuance rather than the date of enforcement, although these generally coincide. Some orders have no date at all (e.g. Military Order 1191). Among the orders issued in the official Israeli volumes there are several sections which comprise appointment notices, which appoint various individuals to organisational or bureaucratic jobs within the Civil Administration. We have not listed these appointments, since they have been superceded and are of little general interest. However, a box alerts the reader to their position within the official Israeli volumes so that they can be examined if required.

While we have in general avoided passing editorial comment on the orders contained within this directory, there are some instances where the title or text of an order obscures its meaning from the reader and in these cases we have amended the text in the interests of clarity. For example, Military Order 432, and its amendments, concerns guard duty in settlements in the occupied territories, but refers simply to ‘guard duty in villages’. It is only in the appendix to the order that it becomes apparent that these ‘villages’ are all Israeli settlements, and since we have not listed the settlements individually, we have modified the title of the order instead.

A verbatim translation of two essential military orders, Military Order 378 Concerning Security Provisions (20 April 1970), and Military Order 947 Concerning the Establishment of a Civil Administration (8 November 1981), has been included in the appendices, along with a list of Jordanian laws which the large majority of military orders amend. A comprehensive index is supplied at the back of the volume, along with a more detailed subject index which covers several key areas of legislation such as taxation and land transactions.

The Area Commander may appoint an official with a legal background who is to be custodian of absentee property. The custodian of absentee property has the jurisdiction to negotiate contracts, manage, maintain or develop the property; he may let, rent or sell it or otherwise dispose of it in whichever way he deems necessary. The custodian also has the right to appoint supervisors to manage the absentee property and may transfer all his jurisdiction to them, with the exception of the power to appoint supervisors. Any right that was previously granted to the owner of the absentee property is to be automatically transferred to the custodian. The custodian must keep a register of it and produce an annual report. Anyone who controls property belonging to an absentee owner should declare it immediately or risk severe punishment. If the owner of absentee property returns legally to the area, and can prove his/her ownership rights, the custodian may return the property or a similar property to the owner. However, the custodian may also take a certain percentage of the value of the property as an administrative fee. Article 5 states that "any transaction carried out in good faith between the custodian and another person concerning property which the custodian considered, at the time of making the transaction, to be state property, shall not be cancelled and shall continue to be valid even if it is subsequently proved that the property was not at that time absentee property".

The Israeli official-in-charge also has the right to appoint supervisors to manage the state property and may transfer all his jurisdiction to them, with the exception of the power to appoint supervisors. Severe punishments are to be inflicted on any person attempting to keep control over any state property. ORDER CONCERNING AMENDMENT TO REGULATIONS ON EDUCATION RATES
This delegates the powers granted to the education minister (under Jordanian law 1, 1956) to the chief education officer at the Civil Administration. The amount levied from landlords and tenants in the municipal areas is to be 7% of the net rent as specified by the law on buildings and land within the municipal boundaries. The landlord has the right to be compensated by the tenant for the amount of education tax which he pays on their behalf. If the chief education officer rents a property controlled by the absentee land office (military order 58, 1967), the tax will be levied only from the tenant. The committee will include the mayor, the local education council head, and three members from the local education committee. The head of the Civil Administration has the right to amend, cancel, or replace the law. This cancels amendments to education tax regulations, 1968 and military orders 501, 520, 708, 763, 821 and 1168. It describes in some detail the rights of detainees to consult a lawyer in private. This article stipulates, however, that a detainee can have this right to consult a lawyer postponed for up to 96 hours if a senior police officer deems it necessary for security reasons, or for 30 days (in two 15 day installments) if the head of the investigation deems it necessary and puts the request in writing.

In cases in which false evidence has been presented. 2. If new evidence comes to light. 3. If another person is convicted for the same crime as the accused. 4. If the convicted person has been sentenced to capital punishment and there remains an element of doubt. Permission to ask for a re-trial is given to the family of the accused, or his legal advisor, in the event that the accused has died. The application must be hand-written and submitted to the Military Commander within 90 days, unless it is delayed for reasons outside the applicants control, in which case the Military Commander can still call for a retrial. The Military Commander will then ask for the general military prosecutor’s opinion before making a decision concerning a retrial. The military prosecutor has the right to call for an investigation involving the police or any committee. If the prosecutor puts forward a legal opinion, then the accused has the right to see it. The decision of the Military Commander should be given to the accused and the legal advisor in writing unless the Military Commander stipulates otherwise. If the Military Commander refuses a re-trial then no other application can be made even if new evidence emerges. The usual legal procedures will be followed, but the court has the right to deviate from procedure if it deems it necessary in the pursuit of justice.

The suspension period should not exceed 9 months unless a charge is made and the employee is brought before a disciplinary tribunal, or unless the employee is suspended under the terms of other legislation." On returning to work the employee, who has been suspended for a nine month period but neither charged nor laid off, shall be paid the same salary that he/she was receiving prior to the suspension. Any employee serving time in prison or detention will not receive pay, except at the official-in-charge's discretion. MILITARY COURT and COURT: established by virtue of this order.

INFLAMMABLE or EXPLOSIVE MATERIAL: any thing or material, including liquids or gasses, intended or liable to cause an explosion or start a fire.

REDUCTION OF PENALTIES: (including the shortening, substituting or postponing of execution, either totally or partially). This order shall consider a fine to be a lighter penalty than a term of imprisonment whatever its duration, so long as the substitution of a fine for a prison sentence does not exceed 30 Israeli liras for every day of imprisonment.

FIRE ARMS: any weapon of any type which can inflict injury or death, or possesses a barrel from which a bullet or projectile may be fired. This term includes any part or section of such a weapon fitted or adapted to diminish the noise or flash caused by its firing.

PUBLIC OFFICIAL: this includes the police, members of the security service, as defined by the Order Concerning Security Personnel in the Area, anyone employed by the Israeli Defence Forces or by local authorities, and any other employee in whom jurisdiction is vested by any legislation or security provision.

ORDER: this includes every appointment, order, notification, instruction, request and authorisation.

VITAL SERVICES: essential services to insure law and public order in the area, to guarantee the safety of the public and soldiers of the Israeli Defence Forces, or to protect the lives of the public.

(B) Wherever reference is made in this Order to bombs or hand-grenades or explosives or incendiary material or ammunition, this reference shall be interpreted to include any part or parts of such ordnance as well.

(C) Any subsequent order issued by virtue of the regulations which follow shall become effective from the date of issue.
Any order may be issued verbally if the appropriate authority sees fit.

The authority which creates and issues orders shall announce their implementation as quickly as possible and in whatever manner it sees fit. However, no order will be considered invalid on the grounds that it was not brought to the attention of the person whom it concerned.

The regulations of this article shall be applicable to every security legislation.

It is permissible for the Area Commander to appoint a Military Commander to any region or district in the area. This appointment may be made by announcing the appointee's name or by referring to the position. If a position is referred to, then the person occupying that position at the given time shall be deemed to be the Military Commander of that region or that district.

The Area Commander may grant an individual the jurisdiction of a Military Commander, in total or in part. In circumstances in which an issued order may be contradictory to an order issued by the Area Commander or by the Military Commander, then the order issued by the Area or Military Commander will take precedence.

SECTION TWO - THE COURTS AND THE JUDICIARY

Establishment of Courts
3. Military courts shall be established in the area; these are military courts as defined in article 4 and military courts presided over by a single judge, as defined in article 50.

Convening of Courts
4. Every military court shall be convened by a court president, who is an officer in the Israeli Defence Forces, holding the rank of captain or a more senior grade, and possessing legal qualifications, and two magistrates who are also officers. The court shall be established by the Military Commander, who will also appoint the president and the two magistrates.

Substitution of a Judge
5. In circumstances in which it is impossible for a single-judge military court, for whatever reason, to complete the proceedings, whether the court has begun to hear evidence or not, the Military Commander may appoint another judge in his place. The court, in its new form may take up the proceedings from the stage which they had previously reached. It may also, after granting the parties the opportunity to make their submissions, freely make use of the evidence heard before the previous court, or ask to hear the evidence once again, either in whole or in part.

Location of Courts
6. The military court shall sit at a time and place specified by the president. The court president shall be responsible for appointing the time and place in which the military court shall hear the trial.
Jurisdiction

Prosecutor and Defence
8. Every case for the prosecution which is to be tried before a military court shall be conducted by a military prosecutor appointed by the Area Commander. The accused may be defended by an advocate.

Evidence
9. Military courts shall conduct themselves in accordance with the same laws of evidence which apply in cases in which soldiers are tried. However, military courts may diverge from the laws of evidence in special circumstances which must be recorded, if they deem it to be in the interests of justice to do so.

General Procedural Provisions
10. A military court may, with regard to procedural matters not laid down by this order, adopt any course which it deems to be best calculated to ensure that justice is done.

Trials to be Held in Public
11. The military court shall hold cases brought before it in public. However, a military court may order that a case brought before it shall be conducted wholly or in part behind closed doors if it considers it appropriate to do so in the interests of the security of the Israeli Defence Forces, justice, or for public safety.

Translator for the Accused
12. If the accused does not understand Hebrew the military court shall appoint him an interpreter who will translate for him the statements made during the course of the hearing and the decisions of the court, unless the accused willingly renounces his right to have the proceedings translated wholly or in part. The accused has the right to object to a particular translator and to request that he/she be replaced.

Swearing-in and Warning of Witnesses and Interpreters
13. (A) A military court shall warn a witness, prior to the giving of testimony, that he is obliged to tell the truth, and that he will be subject to punishment in accordance with security provisions should he fail to do so. The witness shall be required to swear to tell the truth. He is, however, entitled to make it known that, for reasons of conscience or religious belief, he does not want to swear, but would rather affirm, so long as the court is of the opinion that the reasons given by the witness are in good faith.

(B) The provisions of sub-clause (A) shall also apply, with the necessary modifications, to the warning and swearing-in of the interpreter.

Adjournment of the Court
14. A military court may adjourn at any stage during the proceedings and may reconvene at any place or time that the court orders. The court shall provide directives concerning the custody of the accused and order his appearance at the adjourned hearing.
